China-brewed Mou Tai beer is set to get the guzzlers talking

THE CHINESE ARE ONE TALENTED LOT—after all, they gave the world everything from the Great Wall and gunpowder to paper and good ol' noodles. But their ingeniousness, much to delight of partygoers everywhere, does not end there. For China is also home to one of the world's finest brews, Mou Tai beer. And why not, since beer is right up there with tea in the popularity sweepstakes over there, and is in fact, the preferred beverage during mealtime among men in the country. Combining the crystal-clear refreshing mineral water from the mountains, the finest malt and premium-quality rice with the unique beer-brewing expertise, Mou Tai has become the number one beer in China. A light drink that goes down smoothly and has been known to uplift the spirits of many a drinker, Mou Tai beer has won numerous awards since its introduction in 2000. It was awarded the honour of 'Chinese Superior Quality New Beer' in 2001 by the National Beer Association and earned the ISO 9000 status in 2003. And now it's made its Singapore debut and is set to win the hearts of merrymakers everywhere. We'll drink to that!

Mou Tai Beer is available at Thai Village Restaurant, New Taiwan Porridge, Golden Crown Restaurant and Hometown Restaurant at $8 per 490ml bottle
